Long time ago, in a kingdom in East Kalimantan, lived a beautiful princess named Putri Aji Berdarah Putih. She was famous for her beauty and her bright delicate skin. The news of it spread to other kingdoms. A King from China heard about her beauty. Not long after, the King of China came to propose to the Princess.

Princess Aji Berdarah Putih then planned to test the King. She asked him to have dinner with her. It turned out that the King of China did not eat using his two hands. He ate directly using his mouth like a dog. This made the Princess feel so disgusted and mad. When the King finally proposed to her, she refused it politely.

The refusal was considered a great insult by the King. He then declared war on the kingdom of the Princess. The King sent a large army from China to attack the kingdom of the Princess. An unbalanced war ensued. Thousands of Chinese troops fought against the small number of the Princess's royal troops.

The Princess knew that her Kingdom was in danger. She then chewed the betel, swearing that the betel nut would become a large centipede that would destroy the King and his troops.

"Oh God, turn my betel bits into a big centipede that will destroy the troops of the King of China," asked the Princess.

After taking an oath, the Princess then spat it out towards the raging battlefield. And strangeness happened, the betel leaves turned into large terrible centipedes. Soon, the King's troops were easily defeated. Meanwhile, the Princess disappeared magically. The King's ship finally sank into the sea. The holiday was coming. At first, I did not know how to spend my long holiday. I did not have any plans because my parents were very busy. My father was finishing his project, while my mother was taking care of my little brother. He was just six months old. Therefore, he needed her attention more.

Fortunately, one of my elementary schoolmates, Umar, did not have any plans either. His house is only two blocks from mine. So, we spent the holiday together. During the holiday, he came to my house almost every day.

We did a lot of things. On the first day, we rode bicycle and went around the city. We stopped at some shops and enjoyed window-shopping. On the second day, I taught Umar how to play futsal. We spent three days just to get him able to dribble well. In the last two days, we visited museums in our city, Sonobudoyo Museum and Yogyakarta Palace Train Museum. We got new knowledge by watching the displayed collections.

Volcanic Eruptions

A volcanic eruption is the release of molten rock, or magma, and volcanic gases through Earth's crust to the surface. Magma is formed when the earth's mantle melts. It is driven to erupt by buoyancy because it is lighter than the surrounding rock. Gases within the magma are under great pressure and force magma upwards. Runny magma erupts through openings or vents in the earth's crust before flowing onto its surface as lava.

An eruption may last from a few minutes to days. An eruption may be only a discharge of steam and gases through a small vent or a spectacular explosion that shoots gases and debris into the sky. The explosiveness of an eruption depends on a great extent of the composition of the molten rock. Magma high in silica will be more viscous than one low in silica. A high-viscosity magma will tend to trap dissolved gases. The pressure of the gases can build up to the point where they are released in a spontaneous explosive eruption. A less viscous magma allows volcanic gases to bubble through more easily and results in outpourings of lava.

The length of an eruption is described as an eruptive pulse, eruptive phase, or eruptive episode. An eruptive pulse is a very short event lasting for a few seconds to minutes. An eruption that lasts a few hours to days and consists of numerous eruptive pulses is called an eruptive phase. Eruptions that involve repeated pulses and phases over days, months, or years is an eruptive episode.

How to Use Social Media for Networking

1. Make profiles on popular platforms

Get established on popular sites such as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Snapchat, Pinterest, and YouTube. Be careful with what you put on any public profiles, as anyone can look you up. Right after you have a nice picture and a cute or accurate name on your chosen platform then you can add friends freely.

2. Add people freely

Request connections with everyone you know and like in real life. If the network is a personal one, add only your close friends who want to hear your thoughts. If the network is a business one, add the people you interact with, whether virtually or in person, so you can grow your reach.

3. Represent yourself

Be active on the sites you choose. Once a day or so share a comment, photo, or article that may interest you and others.

4. Interact with your contacts

The best way to strengthen your network is to interact with the people you are connected with. Take a few minutes a day to check the site and express enjoyment of various posts. Different platforms will let you do this in different ways—you might comment or press "like", "heart", or "favorite."
